

1. Why is it important to define behavior (select all that apply)?
 - a. In order to be more consistent in collecting data.
 - b. In order to make communication more objective.
 - d. To increase the ability to track progress over time.
 - e. To make communication easier across staff members.
2. What are 2 considerations that should be made during the transition period for individuals (select all that apply)?
 - a. New residents may be leaving their families for the first time.
 - d. Some individuals' level of independence may not match staff expectations.
3. What is FBA?
 - b. An assessment process, supported by research that is used to identify the purpose of challenging behavior.
4. What are the 3 components of FBA?
 - d. Indirect, direct, and systematic manipulation.
5. Which of the following 3 items are critical considerations of an FBA?
 - b. Safety.
 - c. Current interventions.
 - e. Influence of other individuals.